WHO: Individuals served, staff, board members, organization members and family of individuals served will be in attendance. The Arc's Board of Directors, Staff, and Quad Cities Chamber representatives will conduct the ceremony. Mayor John Thodos and Alderman Gary Almblade of the City of East Moline have been invited, as well as project contractors. The event is by invitation only and is open to the media.

WHAT: Ribbon Cutting and Dedication Ceremony celebrating the licensing of The Arc's newest Community Integrated Living Arrangement (CILA group home). Additionally the home will be dedicated and named the "LaSalle House," in grateful memory of Manita LaSalle, lifelong Moline resident and special friend of The Arc. A reception offering light refreshments will follow.

The Arc of the Quad Cities Area serves more than 300 individuals with intellectual and other disabilities. Programs foster the highest degree of independence possible, offering residential services, developmental and vocational skills training, supported employment, and respite care. From its humble beginnings in the home of a privately-hired teacher in 1952, The Arc has evolved to a $13.5 million non-profit which employs a staff of more than 250.

The Arc is a CARF-accredited organization and a United Way partner agency.
