Iowa Farm Bureau Says Iowa Farmers Have Waited Long Enough to End DC Farm Bill Gridlock

WEST DES MOINES, IOWA – June 11, 2013 –Iowa Farm Bureau Federation (IFBF), Iowa’s largest grassroots farm organization, applauds the Senate’s bipartisan passage of the 2013 farm bill, the Agriculture Reform, Food and Jobs Act. Although it has been months in development and the subject of much debate, the bill’s risk management tools and viable economic safety net is welcomed by Iowa’s farmers.

“For too long, political chasms in Washington over the farm bill have been casting a mood of uncertainty for Iowa farmers and agribusiness industries. We know this year’s crop is a crucial one for global market exports, biofuel production and Iowa’s grain and livestock farmers and we know this new farm bill will have changes in the commodity program; new dairy programs, new risk management programs and producers need to understand them, to help them make choices. Producers also want the confidence that crop insurance plans will be maintained and conservation programs are available,” said IFBF President Craig Hill.

Work now intensifies in the House, as it moves forward with its farm bill legislation, which has some notable differences from the bi-partisan Senate version passed last night. “We urge the House to continue movement forward on this very important legislation, because so much is hanging in the balance when it comes to food production and food security of our nation. We’ve all waited long enough for this to get inked,” said Hill.
