The Lloyd Dobler Effect

Rock Island Brewing Company

Thursday, February 15, 10 p.m.

Most women, I'd guess, would consider the most romantic man in movies to be Lloyd Dobler, John Cusack's kickboxing, boombox-hoisting character from 1989's Say Anything. (At least the movie would say that, and you really don't want to hang with anyone who hasn't.) Smart, then, of Phil Kominski, Chris Bruno, Donnie Williams, Patrick Hughes, and Rusty Williams to name their band The Lloyd Dobler Effect - audience empathy is baked right in! This D.C.-based rock outfit, whose sound is often likened to the Steve Miller Band's, has performed more than 1,200 gigs in 39 states and eight countries, and a visit to the band's Web site makes them appear as sincere and sweet as the guy they're named after. "We not only enjoy meeting, greeting, and getting to know our fans as friends," the site states, "but we understand how important you are to our success. We love our fans." The Lloyd Dobler Effect performs at RIBCO on February 15, so remember, guys: If your girlfriends spontaneously decide to make Thursday "girls' night out," at least you'll know where to find them.
