Tactile, warm, and vibrant quilts wage a playful dogfight with large and bold oil paintings dripping with lush colors, offset by lightly weathered pods of overlapping metal plates. Just a few miles away, their siblings passively engage each other in a nonchalant visual standoff.

Can this really be the same exhibit?

Even though the Quad City International Airport has one of the best galleries in the area, it is challenging to motivate people to go and see artwork there when they aren't using the airport. The work shown in the airport is viewed - and by the nature of where the waiting area is - contemplated by far more people than any of the traditional art venues in the Quad Cities. But only the most avid art-lovers travel to the airport specifically to see a show.
