Washington, D.C. – Congressman Dave Loebsack announced today that because the House of Representatives will not be voting again until Monday evening, he will return to Iowa to meet directly with those affected by the reckless government shutdown. SUNDAY, OCTOBER 6th at 1:00pm, Loebsack will meet with the owners of Reid's Beans in West Branch to discuss the economic consequences that Washington's political games are having on small businesses. After the Herbert Hoover Presidential Library in West Branch was closed due to the shutdown, the owners of Reid's Beans reported an immediate drop in their business. Media are invited to attend.
