“List shows veterans which colleges are a good fit”
(December 28, 2011 --- Bettendorf, IA) For the second consecutive year, Brown Mackie College — Quad Cities has received the honor and was selected as a Military Friendly School by G.I. Jobs magazine. The school now appears on the 2012 list of Military Friendly Schools. The list honors the top 20 percent of colleges, universities and trade schools which are doing the most to embrace America’s veterans as students. The common bond that the schools listed have is their shared priority of recruiting students with military experience.
Brown Mackie College — Quad Cities has always held the deepest respect for the men and women who have served and continue to serve our country,” says Kao Odukale, President of Brown Mackie College — Quad Cities. “This ranking further acknowledges our long-term commitment to providing our military and veteran students with access to a quality education. We are extremely pleased to once again be included on this list and in the company of other distinguished colleges and universities.”
The list was compiled through exhaustive research starting last April during which G.I. Jobs polled more than 7,000 schools nationwide. Methodology, criteria and weighting for the list were developed with the assistance of an Academic Advisory Board (AAB) consisting of educators from Carnegie Mellon University, Duquesne University, Colorado State University, Dallas County Community College, Old Dominion University, Cleveland State University, Lincoln Technical Institute and Embry Riddle; as well as Keith Wilson, Veteran Administration’s Director of Education Services; Michele Spires, American Council on Education’s Assistant Director of Military Programs; Janet Swandol, Associate Director for College Level Examination Program
