

No podemos: Hispanics turn on the president, Obamacare

Written by Dustin Hurst

Wednesday, 18 December 2013 14:29

Lost in translation: Once-supportive Hispanics turning backs on Obama, ACA

They were among President Obama's best supporters, but support for the president and his signature health care law has eroded among Hispanics.

A recent Gallup poll showed Obama's approval rating among Hispanic down 23 percent, to 52 percent in October.

Read the story >

NPR more than capable of standing on its own

The network draws 4.6 percent of its revenue directly from the government — federal, state and local.

Read the story >

Volunteer firefighters battle IRS, Obamacare on Capitol Hill

Volunteer firefighters are fighting back against IRS mandates that they be classified as employees subject to Obamacare.

Read the story >