On December 10th, 2011, photographers from across the world will use their photography skills to give back to their local community. It's a movement called Help-Portrait, and local photographer Jesse Inskeep is joining the movement to serve the Quad Cities.

Help-Portrait's purpose is quite simple: grab your camera, find people in need, and take their picture. When the prints are ready, the photographs get delivered.

"I have very few photographs from when I was growing up as my family simply didn't have the time or money to make it a priority," says Inskeep. "Now that I'm older and especially now that I have a daughter, it makes me sad that she's not able to see portraits of what I looked like when I was her age. My hope is that those who come to Help-Portrait will leave with something they'll treasure for generations."

Inskeep will be working with a team of other volunteer photographers, hairstylists, and makeup artists to make sure each person getting their picture taken looks their best.

Help-Portrait will be hosted by Connection, a church in Bettendorf. Connection has helped Inskeep spread the word about this event, including telling those who attend Connection's Food Pantry and reaching out to local shelters and families who could use the encouragement a professionally-done portrait can give. "Our goal in hosting Help-Portrait is help those who are going through a tough time this holiday season feel beautiful and valuable," says Jason Holtgrewe, one of Connection's pastors.

Those interested in coming to Help-Portrait can reserve their time-slot by calling 309.524.5024.

Help-Portrait takes place at Connection on December 10th from 1-4pm. Connection is located at 4374 State Street, Suite 2, Bettendorf, IA 52722 and can be contacted by calling 563.209.6384 or by emailing jason@connectionqc.org.
